

My networks

Only humans have the technology to connect people on opposite sides of the planet (television, radio and the internet). Every day millions of messages pass around the world. Communicating - it's part of what makes us human.

- 1 Make a list of the communication devices you have used today. Sort your list into two groups: the essential and just for fun. You may depend on that phone call saying where you were meeting a friend but sending that joke by text was just for fun.
- 2 Underline the communication devices that would not have been available to people 40 years ago. How did they manage without these devices?

Essential uses	Just for fun